Summer Term New Courses Are Released

Next Quarter
To Begin June 12,
End July 19

The 1944 Summer Quarter will begin Monday, June 12 and end August 26, according to the summer quarter bulletin of the University. The first term will terminate on Wednesday, July 19 and the second term will begin the following day, July 20, and will end August 26.

The summer quarter catalog, which includes courses to be offered both terms, has been released by the office of the registrar. The listed courses, however, are tentative until a definite enrollment number can be determined.

Courses Offered

The following courses will be offered, although the registrar's office reserves the right to withdraw courses if there is no necessity for them. Courses in the College of Arts and Sciences are anatomy and physiology; ancient languages and literature; anthropology and archaeology; art; bacteriology; botany; chemistry; economics; English language and literature; geography; geology; German language and literature; history; hygiene and public health; journalism; library science; mathematics and astronomy; military science; music; philosophy; physical education; physics; political science; psychology; romance languages and literatures; sociology and zoology.

College of Agriculture and Home Economics: agronomy; agricultural entomology; animal industry; animal pathology; farm engineering; home economics; horticulture; markets and rural finance, and rural sociology.

College of Engineering: civil engineering; sanitary engineering; general applied mechanics; administration; engineering drawing; mechanical engineering and metallurgical engineering.

College of Education: agricultural education; business education; distributive occupations; educational administration; educational psychology; elementary education; history of education; home economics education; industrial education; music education; philosophy of education and secondary education. Courses will also be open in the College of Law and the College of Commerce.

1944 Fee

For 1944 the fee for all resident students, except those enrolled in the Law School, will be $35 for the full summer quarter, and $23 for either term. For non-resident students the corresponding fees will be $55 and $28. For resident students enrolled in the College of Law, the fee for the full summer quarter will be $38 and for either term $25. The corresponding fees for non-resident students will be $58 and $30.

Classes during the Summer Quarter will begin at 7 a.m. The first hour will be from 7 to 8:15 a.m., the second hour from 8:25 to 9:40 a.m., the third hour from 9:50 to 11:05 a.m., and the fourth hour from 11:15 to 12:30 a.m. A few courses will meet for one-hour periods.

The faculty will include 156 instructors for the summer quarter.

The normal load for the summer quarter is 18 hours for both terms and eight or nine for one term.

May 5 Last Day To File For Degree

Friday, May 5 is the last day on which application may be made for graduation in June. No student will be considered for graduation who has not filed an application. Candidates for the bachelor's degree will be charged a graduation fee of nine dollars.

This will cover the rental of cap and gown, diploma fee, the Kentuckian and senior dues. Candidates for advance degrees will be charged a fee of 15 dollars, which will cover the above with the exception of the Kentuckian and in addition, the cost of the hood to be presented the candidate.

Graduation fees are payable not later than Monday, May 29, according to an announcement by Leo M. Chamberlain, dean of the University.

Panhellenic Day To Open Meetings Slated For April 29

The second of the annual Panhellenic Workshops, initiated at this time last year, will be held April 29, in the Union building, according to an announcement made by Frances Bell, president of the Panhellenic council.

Individual discussion groups made up of officer representatives from the sororities will meet in the morning. The groups and their chairmen are:

9:30 a.m.—treasurers' group, Ida Lou Ross; Scholarship, Marion Slater; Pledge Training, Doris Smith.

10:30 a.m.—rush chairmen and Panhellenic representatives, Nancy Shropshire; house mothers and social chairmen, Frances Lawton.

11:30 a.m.—house presidents, Jean Runyon; chapter presidents, Emily Hunt.

A luncheon meeting at 1 p.m. at the Lafayette hotel will conclude the day's program. Mrs. Warren C. Drummond, an Alpha Omega Pi, will be guest speaker. At that time, awards will be presented and scholarship ratings will be announced.

French Shows Tone Qualities

By Myrtle Weathers

Lucille Haney French, soprano, presented her graduation recital Sunday afternoon at Memorial hall showing good tone quality and control throughout her program. Her usual clear soprano was full and beautiful.

In her first group Mrs. French sang, "Sheep May Safely Graze," by Bach; and three traditional Ulster airs: "The Blue Hills of Antrim," "My Lagan Love," and "Black Sheela of the Silver Eye," arranged by Hart. These Ulster airs were sung with beautiful melody and pathos.

The second group included "Die Mainacht," Brahms; "Gretchen am Spinnrade," Schubert; "Wanderers Nachtlied," Schubert; and "Who is Sylvia," Schubert.

Mrs. French sang the aria, "Adieu Porets," from Jeanne D'Arc, by Tchaikowsky, in a finished and lovely style.

Her final group included "Obstinatien," by Fontenailles; "El Majo Discreto," by Granados; "The Cry of Rachel," by Salter; "The Pasture," by Naginski; and "Serenade," by Carpenter. She did a particularly excellent interpretation of "The Cry of Rachel."

Ruth Pace, junior music student, accompanied Mrs. French. Miss Pace played "Intermezzo Op. 117, No. 1," and "Intermezzo Op. 117, No. 2," by Brahms. Miss Pace is to be complimented on the scholarly way in which she played her solos.

Elder To Speak On Labor Problem

Charles Elder, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, will speak on "We Take a Look at Labor" at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Music room of the Union building.

This is the second in a series on Capital and Labor which is held at the regular meeting of the upperclass YW-YWCA.

D. O. Burke, Lebanon, is in charge of the arrangements. Frances Kendall, Vanceburg, will preside at the meeting.

Music Majors Present Joint Graduation Recital

Buchanan, Gumm
To Appear Sunday
In Second Contest

Mildred Ione Buchanan, pianist, and Mabel Claire Gumm, violinist, will be presented by the Department of Music of the University in a joint graduation recital at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 23, in Memorial hall.

Miss Buchanan, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Buchanan of Mayslick, is a candidate for the degree of B. S. in Music. Before entering the University, she attended Bethel Woman's college, Hopkinsville. Miss Buchanan is a member of Phi Beta, national honorary and professional music, dramatic and dance fraternity for women, the Women's Glee club, YWCA, and the Baptist Student union.

B. S. in Music

Miss Gumm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Shirley Gumm of Lexington, is also a candidate for the degree of B. S. in Music. She is a member of Phi Beta, the Women's Glee Club, Philharmonic orchestra, Sinfonietta, String quartet, and YWCA.

Beth Caddy of Lexington, student in the music department, will accompany Miss Gumm.

Program

The program is as follows: Part 1: Miss Gumm will play La Folia Variations by Corelli; part 2: Miss Buchanan will play Chorale: Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring by Bach-Hess and the Sonata in C minor, Op. 10, No. 1, Allegro molto, Prestissimo by Beethoven; part 3: Miss Gumm will play Concerto in D major, No. 4 by Mozart; and part 4: Miss Buchanan will conclude with Prelude in E minor, Op. 28, No. 4 by Chopin, Prelude in A flat major, Op. 28, No. 17 by Chopin, and Rhapsody in C major, Op. 11, No. 3 by Dohnanyi.

Dean Named State Mother

Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women at the University, has been selected as state mother of Kentucky to compete with other state representatives for the title of "American Mother of 1944."

A committee representing the Golden Rule foundation selected Mrs. Holmes, widow of Dr. Percy Holmes, head of the Department of Hygiene and Health at the University who died in 1924, as the representative from this state for the selection of the American mother to be made Thursday in New York.

Past president of the Lexington branch of the American Association of University Women, she is also a member of the Family Welfare Society, and the State Association of Deans of Women. Also, she is active in the National Association of Deans of Women, the state AAUW board, the board of directors of the Red Cross, the Civilian Defense committee, Kappa Delta Pi society, and the state and Lexington YWCA boards.

Mrs. Holmes is the mother of four children, Dr. Kendall Holmes, captain in the Medical division of the Air Corps at Luke Field, Ariz.; Mrs. Smith Broadbent, Jr., of Cobb, Ky.; Mrs. John Holmes MacVey of Washington, D. C., and John Hoyt Holmes of Louisville. She has three grandchildren, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Broadbent.

Famed Author To Visit UK Dr. Alexander To Speak On India

Dr. Mithrakurami K. Alexander, author of "India and the Four Freedoms," will speak on "The Clash of World Force in India" at 11 a.m. Wednesday in room 303 in Frazer hall.

At 4 p.m. Wednesday he will discuss "India's Future" in the Music room of the Union building.

Dr. Alexander has been a prize winning public speaker since his boyhood days. He was graduated from the University of Madras where he ranked first for his AB and MA degrees. He has lectured on India's philosophy, religion, and political development in many parts of the world, and devoted himself untrillingly to the promotion of international and international affairs.

Among his other interests are singing and composition of poetry and music in Malayalam which is the language spoken on the Malabar coast.

Data For Book Gathered From South American Trips

By Dora Lee Robertson

When a man who lives in Lexington, more than 10 miles from a river, writes a successful book entitled, "Fishes of Western South America," you begin to wonder how he did it.

Here is how it all came about. Dr. William Ray Allen, author of the book and professor of zoology at the University, stated that he first became interested in South American fishes through an old professor of his at Indiana University, Dr. Carl H. Eigenmann, head of the Department of Zoology there.

"Dr. Eigenmann was planning to make an expedition to South America and when he found that I was also enthusiastic about making the trip, he helped me in making arrangements which made it possible for me to go. I went as a representative of the University of Illinois," said Dr. Allen. This was the Irwin expedition of 1918-19.

Search In Peru

"In the summer of 1918, we started our search in Peru. Each of us took a section of this Western land. I would travel for months at a time without seeing an English speaking person, and with only my guide, Pedro, for company. We traveled by train, both passenger and freight, and sometimes even rode in the caboose, or on small track cars. On the rivers of the interior, we rode in dug-out canoes and grass boats. At times we were able to ride on river steamers. Each man had his own hammock and would have to find a place to hang it on the deck of the steamer, when nightfall came. One night, finding no place to hang my hammock, I found a woodpile and no sooner had I gotten settled than the fireman came and wanted the wood. In exchange, he gave me a wooden bench to sleep on. Of course, we traveled on mule and horseback a great deal, but much of the time, we traveled on foot.

"One day, while on a steamer, near central Peru, I saw one of the most beautiful sights which I have ever seen in my life and one which few men have seen. About 4 p. m. I went up on deck and suddenly the clouds began to slowly part and in the distance, rising 22,000 feet into the sky was Mt. Huascaran covered with snow. The mountain is usually hidden by the clouds but this once, the clouds parted."

Scientists Plan Convention April 28 ,29

State Meeting
To Take Place
At University

The state convention of the Kentucky Academy of Science, an organization of scientific workers located in colleges and industries throughout the state, will be held April 28 and 29, at the University according to Alfred Brauer, secretary of the academy and professor of zoology at the University.

Affiliated with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the academy is made up of the following divisions: biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, psychology and philosophy, physics, and the Kentucky Society of Natural History, a Louisville organization.

Total membership of the state organization, which is incorporated under statutes of the state and whose headquarters are Lexington, is 375.

Officers

Officers are L. A. Brown, Transylvania College, president; Paul J. Kolachov, Seagrams, Louisville, vice-president; Alfred Brauer, University, secretary; William J. Moore, Eastern State Teachers college, Richmond, treasurer; J. T. Skinner, Experiment station, Lexington, former president; A. R. Middleton, University of Louisville, representative on council AAAS; and Anna A. Schieb, Eastern State Teachers college, counselor to Kentucky Junior Academy of Science.

The junior branch of the academy is made up of all science clubs and other scientific organizations of secondary schools.

Program

The program will consist of the following meetings: General meeting, 7:45 p.m. Friday, room 200, Biological Sciences building. The speakers will be Dr. D. B. Keyes, chief, Chemical Industries branch, War Production board, Washington; Col. Waldo Shumway, chief, Plans and Training Board, War Relocation Authority, Washington; H. C. Blackmeyer, director, Industrial Relations, Seagrams, Louisville; and President Henry T. Heald, III, Institute of Technology, Chicago.

Biological and bacteriological sessions will be held at 9:15 a.m. Saturday, room 313, Biological Sciences building.

Chemistry session, 9:15 a.m. Saturday, room 214, Kastle hall.

Geology field trip, beginning 8 a.m. Saturday, room 203, Miller hall.

Mathematics, 9 a.m. Saturday, room 128, Macey hall.

Psychology and philosophy, 9:30 a.m. Saturday, room 211, Biological Sciences building.

"The usual dinner meeting will not be scheduled because of the food situation" stated Dr. Brown.

Sweater Swing Today

The Kentucky Knights will furnish the music for the sweater swing which will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. today in the Card room of the Union building.

Lived On Bananas

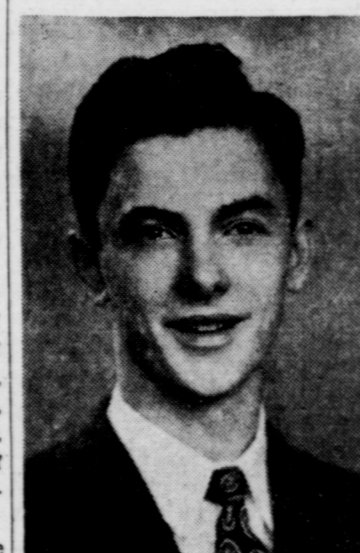

Dr. Allen said that many times he lived on stewed green bananas as the natives do. He also said that once he had the end of his finger bitten off by a Piranha, which is a type of fish that will eat any meat within sight, man or beast, and that the natives are so afraid to bathe in the waters that they stand on rafts and pour water over themselves.

"We returned from this expedition after about a year. However, tropical tramps always want to go back, and in a little while, I returned. This was the Centennial expedition of 1920. I came home by way of the Amazon.

"Both of us began to work on the book; however, Dr. Eigenmann soon began to lose his health and took a trip to Florida to rest for a few months. He took the manuscript with him and lost it there. He returned to Indiana, and in a few months died.

"After a while, the manuscript turned up in a railroad office in the lost and found department. I completed the book and it was published at the University in 1942," Dr. Allen stated.

There will be no campaigning around the polls, and students will vote one at a time, according to Jimmy Hurt, chairman of the election board.

'Accent On Youth' Deserves Praise As 'Excellent' Play

Guignol Actors
Show Skill In Last Production

By Morgan Woodward

Mr. Frank Fowler's selection of "Accent on Youth," for the current Guignol production was an excellent one. Samson Raphaelson knows how to write sophisticated dialogue, and unlike many modern playwrights, he also knows how to tell a story—up to a point.

Not Original Theme

"Accent on Youth" is not an original theme; it is the old one of the middle-aged playwright who wins a young girl from a young rival, a theme always popular with males who have passed forty. Being a modern, Mr. Raphaelson has small regard for marriage or the marriage state. Everyone except the young actor who loses out seems to share in this moral chaos, and at the end, Mr. Raphaelson makes the young man, who started as most likeable, very much the cad.

The moral tone of the play is not improved by making the actions of the characters at times more indefensible than they really are, through insufficient preparation for their actions. The dialogue and much of the character drawing is excellent. Although the first act was rather poorly done, the acting as a whole was admirable.

Popa Amusing

Eli Popa was both amusing and poignant as the aging playwright which he portrayed with his usual self-ease and confidence. Sarah Wilson was sincere and attractive as his secretary, while Wallace Briggs as the philosophic butler, and Dr. L. L. Dantzier as the sixty-year-old actor, gave comedy performances which could not have been bettered. Indeed, a whole chapter could be written on Mr. Briggs' humorous facial expressions. Jacquelyn Wiedeburg was likewise very convincing as a young actress, and Dietrich Roetter fitted himself quite adequately into the role of Dickie Renault.

The play itself, and the acting, coupled with one of the best Guignol settings ever created, was most successful in opinion of this critic.

Dupre Speaks To Open Class Vandenbosch To Be Fifth In Series

Dr. J. Huntley Dupre, professor of history, will give an open class lecture at 2 p.m., Tuesday, April 25, in room 201, Frazer hall.

Speaking on the subject of "The Open Door Policy and the American Interest," Dr. Dupre will conduct this fourth in a series of open classes for this quarter.

On May 5 Dr. Amy Vandenbosch, head of the department of political science, will hold the next open class in the series.

Chairman of the committee in charge of deciding on classes to be held was Dr. Herbert E. Riley, head of the botany department. He was assisted by Dr. A. E. Biggs, representing the German department; Dr. H. H. Downing, professor of mathematics, and Dr. Niel Plummer, head of the department of journalism.

Long, Faulkner Take Positions On Kernel Staff

Mildred Long, arts and sciences sophomore from Georgetown, has been named assistant news editor of The Kernel by the Board of Student Publications.

Elizabeth Faulkner, arts and sciences junior from Lexington, has been named cartoonist.

Miss Long, a transfer from Georgetown college, is a member of the YWCA and has been a reporter for The Kernel since September.

Active in the Student Art Club, Miss Faulkner is also a member of the Dutch Lunch club and Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary fraternity. She was formerly president of WAA and a member of Cwens.

Student Meetings

All student meetings held in the Union building must be booked with the hostess at the Information desk in the Great hall of the Union at least 24 hours in advance, according to an announcement made by Edith Weisenberger, president of the Union board.

By Shirley Meister
Question: What has brought you to the conclusion that spring is here?

Cpl. Bill Svensh, Co. A: All the girls draping out of Jewell hall windows.

Kitty Crapner, A&S, junior: Jewell hall roof; sunbaths and blisters.

Dolores Shifflet, A&S, junior: The dandelions and the rain.

Susan Fisher, A&S, junior: I'm starting to get sleepy all the time.

Susie Capen, A&S, junior: I feel like cutting all my classes.

Casey Goman, A&S, freshman: I can't believe it; it doesn't happen in April in Michigan.

Marie Coburn, Ag., junior: Freckles on my nose.
Elizabeth Shaikun, Ed., Grad. student: Girls' legs sans stockings with leg makeup instead.
Maria Benavides, A&S, junior: The girls courting the boys.
Mary Elizabeth Stigall, A&S, junior: Dr. Scherago allows his dog to walk to the car instead of carrying him.
Miriam Cohen, Com., sophomore: I've got a sunburn.

Party Platforms Are Announced

How To Vote

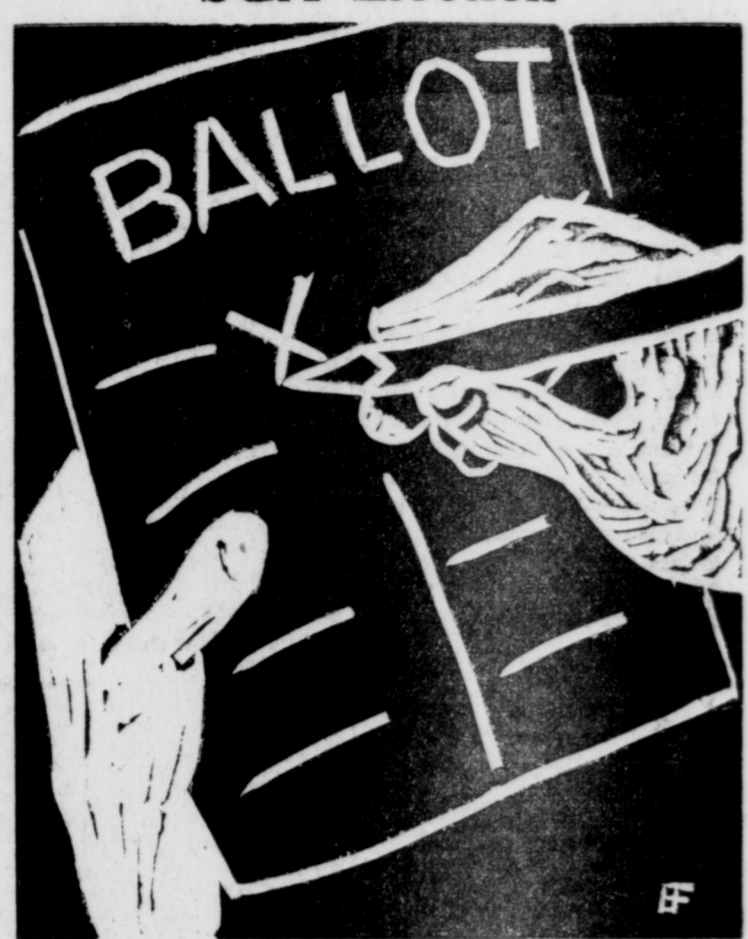

Although The Kernel is not endorsing any particular candidates, it is asking the students to vote in Tuesday's election.

Perhaps many of you are not particularly interested in the Student Government association. The best way to cultivate an interest is to begin voting in its elections. Each of you has a right and a duty to vote in this balloting; accept your privilege—shoulder your responsibility.

Careful plans have been made to keep the election square and "above board." The students should make these plans worth while by turning out full force.

Excellent candidates have been chosen for all the offices, but, as in every human situation, one of the two running for each position will prove better, more efficient. Think carefully before making your selections. Find out all you can about all the candidates. Don't let your friendships and personal loyalties influence you. And, above all, don't think that you have to vote a straight Independent ticket because you don't belong to a Greek organization or a straight Constitutional ticket because you do. Have the courage to stand by your convictions in spite of pressure from politicians and posters. Platitudes—certainly, but platitudes with a purpose, the building of a stronger and a better SGA for the University.

SGA Election

Embry-Erskine

Political promises are seldom kept. Therefore, we prefer not to compose a platform of specific "planks" which will sound good but will mean little. We wish, instead, to state our qualifications and our general plans and to ask you to vote with these as a basis.

Our candidates have worked with the Association and understand its problems. They will cooperate with Independents and Constitutionalists alike because they realize that governing the student body and serving its needs is not a matter of politics. When an issue affecting the welfare of the students arises, they will act to further student interests in every way possible.

If elected, our candidates will continue to strive to maintain students' rights and powers. They will aim at closer cooperation with the University administration in order that the students may benefit in every possible way. They will serve always to the best of their abilities in making SGA the powerful, non-partisan organization which it should rightfully be.

This, then, is what we promise. We ask you to put your faith in our candidates, whom we believe to be strong, efficient, and capable leaders.

Chrisman-Baker

Norman Chrisman and Merl Baker, Independent candidates for the offices of president and vice-president, respectively, supported by the other candidates of their party, have adopted as their platform the following resolutions from the constitution of the Independent party:

1. Elimination of partisan politics when the welfare of the student body is at issue.
2. Positive action to be taken by the SGA and other organizations on the campus to obtain a field house and swimming pool.
3. Completion of and positive action on student eating, housing, and working standards both on and off the campus.
4. Home basketball games.
5. Legislation and immediate action to make the Student Loan fund available to more students and at lower interest rates.
6. Conventions conducted and sponsored by the student body.
7. A student representative on the Board of Trustees.
8. Establishment of the honor system in all classes.
9. An SGA budget bill that will include the greatest possible services at the smallest possible cost to the student body and that will be completed in the first month of the school year.
10. Student war loan and war bond drives sponsored by the students.
11. Elimination of corrupt election practices on the campus.
12. Larger appropriations for social funds.

Ad Libbing

By Betty Tevis
Betty Lee Fleishman

"What have you done with Dr. Millmoss?"
"And make me a normal, healthy girl."

Do these lines strike a responsive chord? If they do, rush into the Kernel office and join the highly intellectual JT Fan Club. If the lines resound in meaningless overtones, then pick up that Joe Miller gag book and forget the whole thing.

Of the 1,400 humans present at the appearance of bandman Woody Herman in Lexington Tuesday, it's a fact that at least 4/3 were

UK students. Particularly noteworthy were Herman (This time it's NOT our prexy) fans Edith Conant, Marjorie Hunsinger, and Lelia Nichols who stood in the first ranks for at least three hours, knocking themselves out at the clarinetist's so-called "sending."

Carolyn Hill's buddy Sy wanted to give her his pen and pencil set so they would be "penned."

"Remember September 18!" will go in history with "Remember the Maine" and all the other slogans of great losses. With a plaintive look in his eyes chemistry major Herb Fogel tells the story about the nice white 2-A cards received by nine remnants of the once-proud department. September 18 was the date their extended deferments would expire—five more months of FREEDOM stared them in their respective faces.

Next day came a telegram to Dean Chamberlain with a withdrawal. It was all over, the deferments canceled. "Ha!" says Fogel, "You can't win."

If it ever happens again we of this column will begin an immediate campaign to raise funds for a monument. It will be a bronze fudge cake mounted on a marble plate suspended above

Booth 10 in Rose Street, with the simple inscription, "TS."

The soldiers on the campus have hit upon something new. Say they, "It's coming. It will be back again. It was here on April 10. They had it in a box in front of the Union building but it got away. However it will be back again. Next month it will be here on the fourth and in June it will reappear on the fourteenth. It's coming." You figure it out, we can't.

And may we add that we wish to compliment Marge Palmore and Helen Davis on their excellent taste in reading material.

The nice thing about mail is that when you open an envelope you never know what to expect to find inside. In Tuesday's mail we received a nickel from a friend in Texas. Said he, "Go buy yourself an ice cream cone."

Mean trick of the week: The gals at one residence house told a pinch-hitting house mother she couldn't leave her room except for meals. So the poor lady locked herself in the tiny cubicle from Friday through Sunday which, even in the SAE house, can be torturous.

Seems to us those Independent party posters asking, "Who's Norman Chrisman?" and "Who's Merl Baker?" are the biggest invitation to mayhem we've seen this year. All we're waiting for is some resourceful Constitutionalist to answer those questions which so tantalizingly ask for it. But met with typical apathy, the campaign has ended without a comment.

We add the reminder that if these were the "good old days" they would never have escaped. Sad to think the days of butchered election slogans and brawling politics have been replaced by downright neglect.

Hawaiian Hula Is 'Nothing' Compared To UK Dances

DEAR EDITOR:

Aloha to the "Women's, Children's and Disabled Gents' School of Higher Learning" — that's what I have been told it is called now, but to me it is still the good old University. It must be a girls' school now if even the fraternity houses are inhabited by the female sex, but it won't be long before the men will return to once again (?) take charge of things.

UK Message Center

Have gotten an idea in my head that I want to get rid of; thought I would turn it over to you. Probably you have read several copies of "Yank," the serviceman's magazine; in it they have a "Message Center," which enables men in the service to regain contact with buddies whose addresses they no longer know. Why doesn't The Kernel carry one of its own, so that old U. of K. boys can locate one another? Many of us glance through "Yank's Message Center" because there is so little chance that anyone listed there will be known by us, but you can bet that when we get a copy of The Kernel every word is read. If there were a "Message Center" in it, well, a lot of morale-building results would be accomplished. How about it?

Horn, Satterfield

Taking for granted you will see its value, and to give you a starter, will you please help me locate Lieut. Emery Horn, Inf., last heard of a year ago in Iceland? Also have James Satterfield write me; the last address I have for him is ASTP, University of Kentucky, and I know he has left there. For that matter I would like to hear from any Delta Epsilon man; we are sure scattered over a lot of territory. Haven't run across any of them out here.

Bumped into Sonny Hall a couple of weeks ago, and even if he is an SAE, I felt mighty good to have a bull session with someone I knew back at school.

Movies All Wrong

These Hawaiian Islands are more beautiful than words can describe but as for the hula girls—don't believe all that the movies depict. And as for the dancing itself, I've seen some of our good thoroughbred Kentucky girls at the Student Union dances do a "shake" that would make these babes die with envy.

Well, guess I've rambled along enough. Hope you will give my idea a try, for I'm sure that it will be more than appreciated by a large number of past UK students.

Whether it is "Home alive in '45," "Back to the sticks in '46," or "Return to heaven in '47," save me a coke, a cigarette, and a Kernel for some rainy Friday morning in the Grill.

UK In World War I

By Mary Louis Mitts

The U of K-Cincinnati mix-up may have lacked interest as a basketball game, but as a female wrestling match it was way out on the twig.

First Dormite: Did you see the "aurora borealis?" It was simply wonderful.

Second Dormite: (just in from date) We saw some show; maybe that was it.

Freshman: That girl treats me just like a dog.

Junior: Well, she's had you on a string for a long time.

"Waiter, give me the check." She (After parlor session) Now I know how you won that loving cup.

"Magazine editors must lead a somewhat gloomy life," declared Bill Loward, as he opened some returned manuscripts.

"Why so?" asked Bob Raible.

"All they seem to do is express their regrets."

Do you notice any change in me? Bind my limbs with chains of steel. Cast me in dungeons old. But do not hold me after Chapel. While the grub gets cold. No, dear professor, the evenly lined sentences sometimes found in this column are not poetry. Respect for the canine family even makes us hesitate to call it doggerel.

Clara: I'm afraid to tell you, Miss Marge, it would shock you.

Miss McLaughlin: Well, that won't hurt me.

We haven't the slightest doubt that the people of Belgium, France, England, and the other Allied countries consider the "Yanks" a real Salvation Army.

1. Chi Omega

Pat McCarty and Mary Gibson went round and round and came out here last week-end. They went to Louisville to see Bob and Bud, former ASTP, when they should have gone to Cincinnati. Finally they met in Lexington and spent all of two hours together.

Attention, Dean Holmes! Could arrangements be made for Dick Youngerman to live at the Chi O house? It's so-o-o-o much trouble for him to go home at night.

"Don't Get Around Much Anymore" certainly isn't Edith Conant's theme song, for she is really getting around with Snooks, one of our precious pre-meds.

The return of "Chuck" Lang brought a few extra beats from the heart of Jane Eyre.

Marian Richmond is off to Ft. Leonard Wood to see Jack, one of our departed ASTP.

2. Tri Delt

Sis Dozier is taking the first train home to see Tom Moore, former SAE at ole UK, who just got a commission and a "Pair of Silver Wings."

Frances Draffen is off to Hamilton again with Lieut. Bill Schuler, one of the Air Corps boys, to visit his parents. Looks like serious business!

Before departing for the wars Farrel Trumpeter gave Lib Street something to remember him by, namely his Sigma Chi pin.

3. Zeta Tau Alpha

It seems as though Evelyn Johnson's Herman can't sleep a wink at night unless she tells him good-night. Result: she gets a long distance call every night from Camp Campbell.

Virginia Allen was extremely upset when she received a picture of her man with a moustache. In fact she was forced to call California to see what was up.

When Betty Warner went to see Roy at Ft. Dix, she had wonderful intentions. Instead the "light of her life" only got out one night, but he sent a substitute to take care of her. In the scuffle the friend gave her an engagement ring. That's what I call fast work.

4. Alpha Delta Pi

Looks as if Peggy Ward is off to the races with Captain Tom Williamson. Keep your eyes on the horses, Peggy.

DYNAMITE

I see in the crystal ball, Betty Amos is going to get a ring. She got it. Now Miss Flightmaster, answer the 64 dollar question—is it going back? We doubt it.

Bill Young, Birdboy, made a three-point landing at the Alpha Gam house. The biggest point was to see Sarah Bogart.

8. Alpha Xi Delta

Notice to PDR, WW, and Tom Dewey: Why try to run for president with Bill Sturgill, Tom Mosely, "Skeeter" Vance, and Kilmer Combs making speeches like they did at the open house. As orators you would make good blacksmiths.

The bride skipped out, why in the heck doesn't she skip back? Penny Shively Rose, of course, left to see hubby, and almost didn't get back.

Step down, Frank Sinatra, Jim

Moore front and center. He sent the Alpha Xi's a record by him with an attitude talk on one side, and on the other he sang "Streamlined Cannon Ball."

Laura Jeane Blake called Capt. Collier over the phone and almost swooned. (It couldn't have been her wisdom tooth.)

9. Kappa Kappa Gamma

The Kappas have a new pledge, Miss Scarlet Fever. Her big sister is Betty Ruby. Best wishes for a quick recovery, Betty.

When interviewed, Betsy Ross said quite: Pant! Pant! Of course she was speaking of the boys at Berry Field she met in Nashville.

A weekly Saturday bath was given Kappa actives to the amusement of the public. Pledges are endearing things, aren't they?

Wedding bells rang for Laura Oldham. The lucky guy was James Floyd.

Some Private Musings From A Co-Ed's Purse

Soliloquies
By Adele Denman

The rain was falling fast in front of Pence hall. She ran down the walk as fast as she could to make the physics lecture.

"Gotta get there . . . can't miss any more classes . . . what are they doing now . . . cementing something I bet . . . always tearing these buildings up . . . fixing them better . . . look out for that concrete bucket . . . watch it! . . . ouch! . . . oh damn! . . . look at me, mud all over me . . . and my purse has fallen open . . . my things all over the ground."

"Well, this is a fine way to treat me," growled the lipstick as it rolled down the walk. "I who made those lips look like the round full ones that seemed so attractive by covering your thin pencil-like ones. I always went on straight even when you put me on before going through the cafeteria line just because a new man was serving up potatoes."

"What about me," said the mirror. "I am broken in a million pieces—and I was a good one too. I told you about the soot on your nose. And remember the time you used me to watch another girl 'wolfing' on your man when you weren't sitting next to him in class and couldn't look around behind you? I was subtle. But I am glad now to go, at least I won't have to listen to your fussing—like the time I told you how dissipated you looked when you came back from listening to Woody Herman."

"Well," quoth the comb which was sticking up in the grass, "I am right at home here among the grass blades. Every crazy hair do I helped sustain. I held up 'pomps', combed bangs, and I will never forget the workouts you gave me when your hair was too tight after being set."

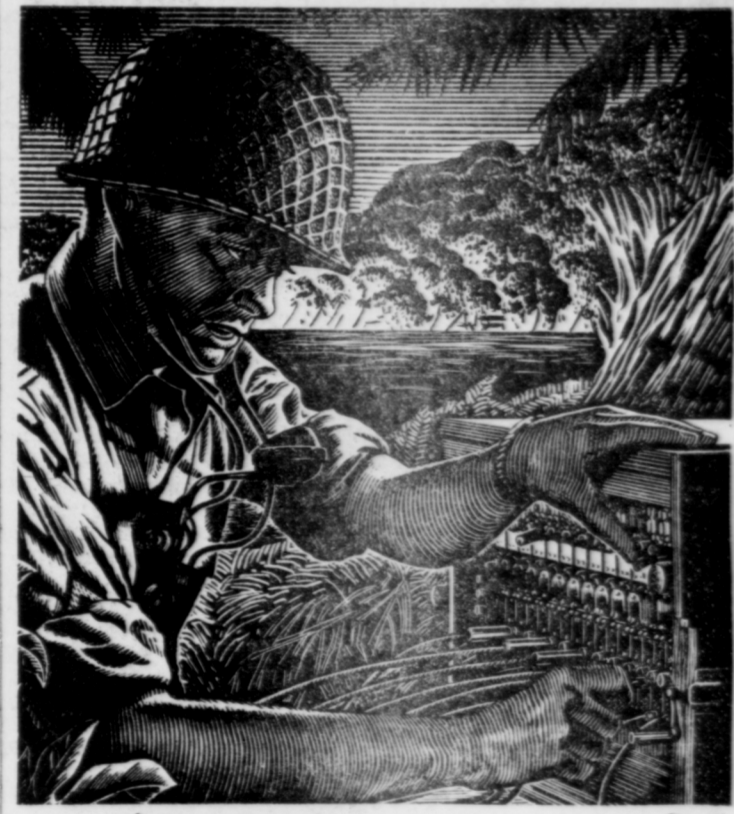

"Alright, clumsy one, pick us up," piped the cigarettes from under her feet. "Watch it! Now we're all mashed. So that's the thanks we get for being handy last night when you 'chain smoked' to avoid complications on the return trip from the Club with a casual Grill acquaintance."

"Out of my way, chubby," growled the fountain pen at the powder puff as it deposited a blot of green ink on it. "This silly ink that you thought would make you different. What about the formulas you wrote up and down your arms when you had that big analysis test. Green was bright enough to catch the teacher's eye wasn't it! Tuff for you."

"Back in the purse with you, grumbling ones," spoke our co-ed. "So this is what you discuss in there when I can't hear you? College life in a nutshell, humph, college life in a purse I think. Wonder what the contents of other's purses have to say?"

Do you wonder. Ask them some—time?

Coed Corner...

By Mary Jane Gallaher

Spring has just about ceased, it is hoped, to dodge to and fro around the corner like a coy, unescorted girl in town on Saturday night (don't be so self-conscious, Geranium), and has decided to be brazen and come out in the open. Now's the time when all young hearts lightly turn—this year the adverb is "heavily," and the majority of the heart throbs are those of the femmes 'cause the fellows are mostly too busy to notice spring and daffodils this season. So while keeping up the home-front morale, your job is to plan for both your futures and at the same time keep your fingers crossed for the fur-lough he's hoping to get—that fur-lough would make all the struggle seem worth while, yes??

Scents and smells are the topic of the chat and, perchance, sound advice. Perfumes are an important point in every woman's life—they should be part of her. There are many effective ways of unobtrusively scenting yourself and your clothes so that the odor seems very much a part of you—and that is a very good come-on device. (Never mind come-on to where.)

When purchasing perfumes, it is wise first to decide, either from your Christmas collection or by applying a sample in the store to the back of your hand and quietly sniffing it for an hour or so (they'll think you dip snuff or dope), exactly what you like best and to what purpose the sweet smell is going to be put. If you are going to be systematic about the thing and stick to the same brand all the time, it is a good idea to get as many accessories (cosmetics, soap, bath powder, etc.) in the same scent as possible. In this way people will always connect you with this selfsame odor. Of course if the individualist in your character chooses this special way in which to assert itself, you may decide on different brands. When using this system it is well to narrow your choice down to two or three favorites, and use the heavy sexy scent for evening and the lighter version for daytime. At nine in the morning you'd better go easy on that sexy mood stuff. That early, even combined with the botanical gardens, it would only produce the need-for-a-bromo feeling in him. The use of cologne in the daytime and the perfume after twilight is a wise move for the majority of you ladies who have no sense of proportion and are inclined to overdo it.

When you've hooked some woe-be-gone relation into giving you some good sniff-whiff, please take care of it. Setting it, on the top of your dresser is fine for display purposes but not so good on what's inside. In fact exposed to sunlight or just plain old light for any length of time it promptly becomes less and less.

It should be left sealed until used, not opened just to see if it smells good, and then put away in a cool dark place where your roommate won't be tempted to throw it on herself when she leaves to try to wangle a higher grade from a professor.

Applied to your skin, particularly your neck, hair, across hands and wrists you'll find yourself moving about in a nice little vapor which leaves a pleasant impression with friends and relatives alike. Do not, however, splash this alcoholic liquid on clothes as it often spots and if it lasts, is likely to become stale and acid. A little on a dress hem, inside gloves and purses is permissible but not on dresses, furs, or coats. Sachets in your drawers (liable to prevent a smooth appearance though) is a good way to install your clothes with fragrance, but pleasantly. Rinsing the things you wash, including your curly locks in a final rinse water containing a few drops of cologne is an effective way of being subtle about the thing.

One last word of warning—go easy on the perfume, much better too little than too much. Carry a small flacon in your purse and renew the odor after awhile but don't overwhelm him when you come downstairs—the stuff can be overpowering, you know. Be delicate in your use of scents and don't use cheap perfume under any circumstance. The good perfume costs so little nowadays and is worth so much.

Alpha Xi's Hold Annual Founders' Day Banquet

Celebrating the fifty-first anniversary of the fraternity, members of Xi chapter of Alpha Xi Delta held their annual Founders' Day banquet Monday night in the Thoroughbred room of the Phoenix hotel.

Hazel Kennedy, Lexington, was named the outstanding pledge of 1943, and Martha Matlack, Lexington, was given the award for the pledge with the highest scholastic standing. Martha Jane Allen, Lexington, was recognized by the alumnae chapter as the active with the highest scholastic record for the past four quarters.

As has been the custom in the past three years, members of the fraternity throughout the nation contributed money to the American Red Cross for special projects. The money this year will be used to purchase a mobile canteen for ski troops in the Rocky Mountains.

Following the Red Cross theme, red and white flowers and white candles formed the principal decorations.

Betty Fraysure, president of Xi chapter, acted as toastmistress and presented the awards. Jeanne Bureau, historian, presented a "fortune teller" skit, reviewing the achievements of members of the chapter during the past year. Ruth Moore, chaplain, pronounced the invocation.

Betty Ament, Hazel Kennedy, Kathleen Wrench, and Mrs. E. B. Sparks, Jr., were in charge of arrangements. Present were active pledges, alumnae, and Mrs. Will Hughes, housemother.

Phi Deltas Honor Disbrow, Pledges

Phi Delta Theta fraternity entertained with a banquet Wednesday, April 12 in the Primrose room of the Lafayette hotel in honor of David Disbrow, Owensboro, who is leaving school, and also in honor of the organization's new pledges. Donald Meade, Prestonsburg, was in charge of arrangements for the affair.

'Extroverts' Are Needed For University Radio Studios

By Mildred Long

Are you bashful? Or are you a "show-off"—or putting it more kindly, an extrovert? If you're the latter, and not the nuisance kind, there is a job just waiting for you in the University radio studio.

Mrs. Lolo Robinson, program director of the studio, says that extroverts make good radio actors and announcers, so with a few other considerations such as a pleasing microphone voice, a clear enunciation, a sense of timing, and a will to work, the way to success is easy.

Need Script Writers

According to Mrs. Robinson, they need, more than anything, script writers and men with smooth masculine voices to take parts in dramatizations and to announce. At the present time, a series of thirty recordings called "Your Land and My Land," which was made before most of the male personnel left for the army, is being used. When the reserve is no more, they will resort to programs which use the voices of the few young ladies who qualify, and the few remaining men. Ordinarily, girls' voices are so high and light that they seem to shriek over a microphone. But if you have a lovely husky tone, or can talk down in your tonsils, don't be discouraged.

Gentlemen particularly talented in "sweet talk" can put their persuasive powers to good use. However, they won't have to sell a thing. No beer, no cigarettes, no toothpaste, and they won't have to bother over Mrs. Smith's "dish-pan hands." The University programs are purely educational and not commercial.

Under the direction of Elmer Sulzer, head of the publicity department, the station has been broadcasting for ten minutes a day over WHAS for the past fifteen years. It broadcasts at the time given by the powerful Louisville station to educational programs.

Few Hints

If you decide to go up to the fourth floor of McVey to the studios and help out Mrs. Robinson and Mr. Sulzer, here are a few hints that may be helpful. You may be given a mimeographed sheet to read over the mike. It may have a paragraph of news reporting, a paragraph selling ginger ale, a bit of drama, and some station identifications. When the person peering at you through the window of the control room nods, and you are on the air, take a deep breath and say, "latest reports on the battle of Sicily." Instead of "lates repwts on the battleofSicily." Be careful to make every W, "double U" instead of "dubya," and say "anyway" instead of "eneyway." And for goodness sake, don't say "you-all." Then just hope for the best!

Library Shows New Exhibit

By Doris Singleton

Definitely in theme with the present time is the new exhibit on display in the library. Photostatic copies of the books and manuscripts open for exhibition in the John Carter Brown Library are now on display here. These works illustrate the development of the democratic principle in the United States.

The copies, which were purchased by the University because of their present importance, cover nine movements in the birth and growth of democratic principles in America. The first of the group is Representative Government. Among the documents on display are "The Colonial Records of Virginia, 1874," "A Complete History of Connecticut," and "The General Laws and Liberties of the Massachusetts Colony."

Early Plans of Union is the second group, and here manuscripts such as "The Proceedings of the Congress At Albany, 1754," including Franklin's plan of a proposed union of several colonies, are exhibited. Various discourses on government from England and American plans for the formulation of a government are also on display.

Famous Protest

With the third group, Taxation Controversy, James Otis' famous protest against the Sugar Act of 1764, "Rights of the British Colonies," is on display. Documents in which the rights of the colonies in regard to taxation are upheld are also exhibited.

Assertion of Independence, the fourth group, included Thomas Paine's "Common Sense," 1776, and also a copy of the "Declaration of Independence."

Constitution. A copy of the Constitution in the form in which it was submitted to the States for ratification in 1787 is included in the fifth group, which is entitled the Constitution. With it on display is a copy of the "Articles of Confederation."

Western Lands and the Public Domain, the sixth group, is amplified by Thomas Paine's "Public Good," an examination into the claim of Virginia as to the vacant western territory, and the right of the United States to the same, in 1780.

With the manuscripts of the seventh group, Freedom of the Press, are several articles related to the trials and imprisonments of editors for the violation of the Sedition act. One is a discussion of the Kentucky Resolution in opposition to the Alien and Sedition Acts.

The background of American education, with its growth and expansion, is illustrated by the eighth group, Education. The "Laws of Virginia, 1662," shows a law of 1662 making "provision for a college." Charters of the various first colleges in the United States are also on display.

The ninth and last group is Freedom of Worship. Richard Bland's "A Letter to the Clergy of Virginia, 1760," and other manuscripts are elements in the struggle

Nancy Jean Tutt Receives Promotion

Nancy Jean Tutt, Lexington, has been made acting first sergeant of the WAC detachment of the 21st Ferrying group, Ferrying Division, Air Transport Command at Palm Springs, Calif., according to word received here.

Sgt. Tutt was formerly a student at the University where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Alice Watkins Now Employed In Radio Station

Alice Watkins, London, who was formerly managing editor of The Kernel in the fall and winter quarters of this year, is now employed in the news room of radio station WHAS in Louisville.

Miss Watkins, who is a March graduate of the University, joins Jessica Gay, graduate in 1943, from Lexington, who has been working in the WHAS news room since last summer. Their work is to take copy from five news teletype machines, and write the news broadcasts heard over WHAS.

While at the University, Miss Watkins was publicity chairman for Delta Delta Delta sorority, president of Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary history fraternity; representative to SGA, president of Chi Delta Phi, national literary honorary; a member of Theta Sigma Phi and a former associate editor of The Kernel.

War Bond Sales

Each week The Kernel will publish the total amount of sales of war bonds and stamps by the SGA Victory center. The report will be found in the "dog ear" beside the nameplate on page one.

Ward Now Seeks PVT. Degree As He Expects To Join Army

By Wanda Spears

"In 1942 I got my 'PA.' when my daughter was born. In 1943 I got my Ph.D.; in 1944 I'm going to get my PVT." This is the already well known statement of William Smith Ward, assistant professor of English at the University, who expects to go into the Army soon. It is doubtful whether he will find his extensive knowledge of the romantic period of literature and the works of Shelley, Wordsworth, and Byron very useful there.

Ward was born in Cynthiana, Kentucky. He went to school at Georgetown college and Harvard University, and obtained his Ph.D. from Duke university. For research on his dissertation for his Ph.D., he traveled over the British Isles quite thoroughly, and briefly on the continent. He went to the foremost libraries and visited those places he was interested in concerning the Romantic period in literature. His completed work filled two volumes. During his travels he toured the United States and also Canada.

His main hobby is—in his own words—"playing with my sixteen month old daughter." She was born on Christmas day in 1942 and to date remains his best Christmas present. His knowledge and collection of books written on child and infant care are almost as broad as those written on the romantic period.

Interest In Teaching

Although his first interest will always be teaching, after the war, he intends to write a book on literary criticism of the romantic period. His ideas about the period are well presented in this statement—"Even though some 'moderns' might call me naive, it is my belief that literature must regain its faith in the greatness of human nature. This picturing of the soul of man as commonplace and his emotions as mean and contemptible just doesn't square up with my conception of what great literature should be. Sure, it must be fully aware of the calamities of life and its deprivations, but also it must be an affirmation, not the destruction, of faith in life and must help to satisfy the universal human desire to find in this world some justice, some meaning, or, at least, some recognizable order."

Articles of his that will soon be published are, "Shelley and The Reviewers Once More," and "Byron's Hours of Idleness and other, than Scotch Reviewers," in "Modern Language Notes." "Wordsworth, the Lake Poets, and their Contemporary Magazine Critics," in "Studies in Philology."

On Committee

Interested in scholarship, he is now on the committee for the Improvement of Scholarship. When asked how the war affected students, he replied, "either I've gotten tougher on my students or they aren't as industrious." He has been faculty adviser of both Keys, sophomore men's leadership society, and Sigma Epsilon, men's honorary literary fraternity, and is now advisor for Lances, junior men's honorary fraternity.

Ward was chosen as the faculty member for membership by Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership fraternity, this year. He is also chairman of the Arts and Sciences College and a member of the committee on elections. He is faculty adviser of the Union board, and a freshman adviser in the College of Arts and Sciences.

What use he will find for Wordsworth, Byron and Shelley in the Army we have yet to find. His present ambition is "to rise to private first class before the war ends."

Kappa Deltas Hold Annual Banquet For All Members

Epsilon Omega chapter of Kappa Delta sorority held its annual initiation banquet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Fireside room of the Phoenix hotel.

The tables were arranged in the form of a diamond and the decorations were spring flowers. Alumnae, actives and pledges were present at the affair.

The program consisted of songs, by Emily Plock and Mary McDonald; a toast to the Rose of Kappa Delta, by Geraldine Dugan, president of the pledge class; a toast from seniors, by Norma Niswonger.

Myra Lee Howell, chosen best pledge, was awarded a Kappa Delta ring. Evelyn Thompson, social chairman, assisted by Sara Mock Floyd, was in charge of arrangements.

Get out the moth balls and begin to pack away the winter togs girls 'cause springtime has definitely arrived. Wear the new glad rags whenever possible and especially if it's possible to have a male in tow, but be careful about spring fever. When you find yourself staring into space for ions of time as the prof drones on, you'd better snap back into line 'cause it's day-dreams like those, angel-puss, that are ruinous to home front morale. What you can't have you'd better not dwell upon especially during class hours.

Dream walking, that's the effect you'll get when you slip on one of the FOUR SEASONS' crisp warm-day cottons. Beguiling colors and materials that appeal, especially to the masculine eye, and that will make you look as cool as the famed Kentucky Julep when days begin to sizzle. A large assortment in all sizes so that you may begin making your selections for summer clothes now at the FOUR SEASONS, 106 Walnut.

For balmy spring days ahead we urge you gals whose sweater-skirt wardrobe needs brightening to visit MARTIN'S new sports shop. You will make the grade on any campus green with their classic skirts and lush colored sweaters, both cardigans and long-sleeved, that will be purely pleasurable for warm day strolls sans top-coat. You won't be able to resist MARTIN'S smooth-tailored jackets either, once gazed upon and tried upon you.

How Did You Get A Name?

By Bettye McClanahan

Did you ever stop to think why they call you Tom, Dick, or Harry? Was it because of an aunt, cousin, or uncle, or could it have been a phonograph record, book, or boy friend as were the ways which some of our campus personalities were named?

Pat Clark, well-known bookstore worker, was a disappointment to her parents who wanted her to be born on St. Patrick's day and, although she missed it two days, they call her Pat anyway.

Juanita Robertson, Lexington, has a big sister who was very fond of the phonograph record "Juanita" and when given the privilege of naming the new offspring promptly called it Juanita.

Jane Eyre of the Eyre twins was named after that well-known book "Jane Eyre," by Charlotte Bronte, while Ann, the other twin, was named for their two grandmothers.

The parents of Maryann Vogt, Louisville, let big brother, who at that time was in kindergarten, choose the title for the new-born babe, and he called her Maryann because of a kindergarten sweetheart with that name.

An investigation reveals that the majority of people, especially in the south, carry family names, usually of the mother's side, as middle or second names.

Think about your name. What does it mean?

Alpha Gamma Delta Holds Reunion Day Banquet For Members

Epsilon chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta entertained with a banquet in honor of the recently initiated members and in observance of International Reunion Day, April 15 in the Gold room of the Lafayette hotel.

The tables were arranged to form a Delta with the lighted fraternity emblem above the speakers' table. Red and buff roses were arranged in the silver "rose bowl" awarded the chapter for high scholastic standing. Sprays of roses and buff candles in silver holders decorated the tables. The banquet programs were buff, embossed with the sorority coat of arms.

Emily Hunt, president acted as toast mistress. Sorority songs were sung and Mrs. William H. Prewitt gave the "State Chairman's Welcome." Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, spoke on "Women of Tomorrow," and Jean Phipps, former pledge president, spoke on "Alpha Gamma Delta of Today." Gwendolyn Pace and Bobette Walker sang a duet.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Rentz made the presentation of the alumnae scholastic award to Gloria Reid, Fenton, Mich. The presentation of the chapter awards was made by Ann Mary Wagner to Susan Eblen, Henderson, as best pledge, and to Dorothy Paar as the pledge having the highest standing.

Mrs. William H. Prewitt was general chairman of arrangements and Virginia Kelley, Betty Anne Ginnocchio, Ruth Latimer and Barbara Shipp were committee chairmen.

Guests were members of the sorority.

WLAP Books UK Students

By Myrtle Weathers

With two smooth voices, a piano, and an abundance of good hard practice and enthusiasm, three University students are giving out over the air waves and local radio fans like it.

College boys and girls, strictly amateurs, can provide real entertainment. Betty Harris Russell, sophomore from St. Louis, walked into the opportunity when WLAP program manager Lowry Kohler, literally tossed the program her way. She recruited good friend Betty Allen, Lexington sophomore, as the pianist and Cpl. Bill Sevenish, ASTP cadetman from Toledo as male contrast, and the program appeared a few weeks ago for the first time.

And now it's a regular Wednesday afternoon feature of the local station—from 3 to 3:15 p.m. The group gives out with the songs people like. Popular and semi-classics provide the main sources of material, with old favorites like "Star-dust" and "Night and Day" also high on the list.

To a talented, enthusiastic group of three University students, this is a step on the way to three separate careers, because none of the trio intends to remain a part of an act. Instead Betty Harris, Betty and Bill all plan separate careers in music.

Blame Coed's New Bruises On MacFarland's Field Trips

By Billie Fischer

Once you've seen people hobbling around to classes with cuts, bruises, and scratches (for treatment see p. 161, Red Cross Manual), and a wild gleam in their strained eyes, you'll know that "Doc" MacFarland's geology field trips have started again. The wild gleam is due to the fact that they are constantly searching for odd rocks and various stuff which is all Greek (Gaulstones?) to Yours Truly.

The class is conveyed to its destination in the geology department's "dog catcher" wagon. It's always a gay little excursion with singing, bouncing, and cow polka. Unfortunately, we girls look like something that dragged the cat in, after being exposed to the four winds (from which the sides of the truck do not shelter us because the truck has no sides). But the boys in the class will just have to learn to bring aspirin along to relieve shock of seeing us let down our hair.

The trip to Cow Spit—pardon me—Elk Lick Falls was quite a picnic. We traveled approximately 13 and six-tenths miles in the "dog catcher" and then "Doc" MacFarland handed us the old "get out and walk" line. We started out by walking, but after four hours of scrambling under barbed wire, over stone quarries, and through water falls, we were lucky if we had the strength to crawl back.

Never again will we laugh at people in unfortunate predicaments. A classmate stepped into some mushy mud and it seemed very funny. So, to express our amusement, we laughed. The next moment found us with both feet and ankles sunk in the same mushy mud. And the following moment found us in the same position—slightly altered. Both hands and feet were in the mud. But it came off our shoes very nicely when we accidentally stepped into a creek.

It was very interesting to note the various methods used by the students to get from the top ledge of the 65-foot falls to the bottom. A few walked, some slipped accidentally, some crawled, and one made it in a few jumps. He's still at the bottom of the falls—we'll pick him up on the next trip.

Getting back up was another equally sad story. One great aid to all of us was the little hammers with which we were so thoughtfully supplied by the geology department. Were it not for them, we would have been unable to hack off the required rocks and minerals for our private collections. The hammers are quite efficient. Looking over our collection, we find rocks, minerals, Brachiopoda, Bryozoa, and one thumb which fits on our left hand.

But, still, we're looking forward to next week's jaunt. Perhaps next time it won't start to rain buckets full when we're at the foot of a water fall, 65 feet down the side of a valley, and a mile from the truck. And perhaps by then we'll all have our health back.

The Greatest Of All Glories--To Have Sold That First Ad

By Ruth Eubank

You have wanted to do some advertising on the Kernel for a long time and so at last you have seen the business manager. He has given you a list of merchants to sell to. He gave you a few pointers like not-chewing gum, soliciting on Saturday, or making a pest of yourself.

You take one look at the list and your courage weakens at the sight of all the names. Since you are just a beginner you will find that your route will not be as large nor does it do as much business as other routes.

Donning your neatest bib and tucker and with a smile you are off into your first adventure in advertising. Better make that smile out of durable epidermis so it won't wear off after the first two refusals.

First Name
This must be the place, you decided, as you hastily scan the first name on your list. What are you waiting for? Go ahead and open the door—all he can do is say no! Well you are in now. See the manager over there in the corner? He is starting to come your way.

With a radiant but not magnetic smile you introduce yourself and rather weakly start to talk about his business. As you are talking you bring into the conversation the students' habit of patronizing his store. (But don't make the mistake I did of telling a clothing man operates the campus hangout for cokes and hamburgers.)

You ask for the manager and are told that he isn't in but is in every morning. Knowing that he is a good prospect, you will say that you will drop by tomorrow morning—mentally chalking another history cut up to yourself. (My dear profs, this is why I have so many cuts in my morning classes just before the Kernel dead-lines.)

Clothing Merchant
Well, that isn't so bad. At least you still have a prospect in him. This next clothing merchant on the list you were told would be a

From The Bleachers

By BETTY TEVIS

Big Clyde Johnson was an eye-fall of solid hero for the little boys who gathered around Stoll field Monday afternoon and watched the year's first scrimmage. "Golly," said one blonde 12-year-old, "Wonder what size shoe he wears." Another, obviously on the inside, replied coolly, "Size fourteen." And that was all the conversation as the kids silently watched Johnson walk around the field and chat with Alec Bower and other sports writers.

"But Tom is the man who knows all about football," genial Johnson smiled, indicating the old man who acts as stadium caretaker. "He's been father to 27 years of University athletes."

Old Tom reflectively chewed and talked about all the big names in Kentucky sports history—especially "Shipwreck." His favorite is about the time Kelly returned, after having graduated, gained weight and a sleek car, plus a debutante wife—one Brenda Diana Duff Frazier. "Shipwreck" and Brenda drove by the field and Kelly hailed old Tom. Tom said howdy and walked past.

"Where're you going in such a hurry?" queried Kelly and Tom paused to talk with the stranger. "Tell me about some of your famous athletes—you've known most of them, haven't you?"

Tom began the story of Aggie Sales and DeMo'ey and Johnson and then he mentioned Shipwreck Kelly. "He wasn't much of a player, was he?" asked Kelly, still not recognized by Tom.

"Oh, no, I thought he was good," Tom maintained, ready now to defend one of his own boys—angry at this stranger's insulting words.

Then Kelly broke down and laughed. "Tom, you're talking to Shipwreck right now." Tom was astounded but he laughed too and he met Diana. She was a pretty girl, Tom still says.

Still too early in the grid season to know who is who and who plays what position. But, four of the 12 men on the field Monday are members of the much-lauded basketball team. Buddy Parker, George Vulich, Jack Tingle and Ed Allin tossed the football around while Kirwan and Shively barked instructions.

Some people misunderstood.

When we tell them that 12 boys tried out for football, they laugh and say cleverly, "Just enough for a team—with one substitute."

Kirwan isn't thinking about a team yet. Just trying to see what talent is already on campus. More is coming this summer and next fall. Ab Kirwan's sleeve is fairly bulging with aces.

All-American Clyde Johnson Watches First Scrimmage

Tall Lieutenant Says UK's Team Looks "Alright"

By Betty Tevis

When All-American Clyde Johnson stood on Stoll field Monday and watched 12 boys in white jerseys play football, that was news.

It was the first time since his graduation in June 1943 that Johnson, now an infantry lieutenant stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., has come back to the campus long enough to watch a football scrimmage. Also, it's the first football scrimmage on UK's gridless campus since the day last December when Johnson and his team-mates packed those Kentucky jerseys in mothballs.

"Look Alright"

Johnson, towering 6-feet-6-inches and even heavier than when AP sportsmen tabbed him the "235-pound Kentucky tackle," was nonchalantly gargantuan, compared to even the brawniest of this year's football. "They look alright to me," he commented, grinning nevertheless at the difference between the present crop and the 100 men in 1942 who tried for the team in the spring. Alec Bower, Lexington Leader sports editor, who "made" Johnson by means of publicity, chatted with the big lieutenant, and freshman on-lookers of the post-Johnson era watched in silence. For Clyde Johnson, of Ashland, is the only All-American in 51 years of Kentucky football.

I asked him about the boys who played with him in 1942. Five of them are stationed at Ft. Benning in the infantry to which most senior military men were sent upon graduation. Harry Taylor is in the 3rd Infantry; Tommy Ewing and Charlie Eblen are awaiting OCS orders; Phil Cutchin and Charlie Bill Walker have their commissions. Clark Wood is in the 7th Armored force. Three more of that last football eleven are in Mississippi—Allan Parr, Eral Allen, and Mel Brewer.

Follows Kernel

Still interested in his sport, Johnson says he follows The Kernel almost religiously. Asked if seeing Kentucky boys play football made him a little eager to toss the ball around and tackle opponents again, the bronzed lieutenant said "yes." When the 'Cats go south this fall to play old Southeastern conference rivals, Johnson, who is stationed rather permanently at Benning, hopes to see some games.

In 24 Years Of Training ROTC Men Are Still Healthy

By John Sutterfield

In the 24 years that the University has had ROTC training there hasn't been an accident on the rifle range. Not a student or an instructor has received even a scratch while firing on the small-bore range in the basement of the Armory.

This record was achieved by using the utmost caution with the ROTC students when they were handling the rifles, according to one of the sergeants who has been stationed on the campus for 13 years.

When a student enters the large room which houses the 50-foot range, he is required to sit down and wait his turn to fire. At no time is he allowed to walk around the room. Moreover, students fire in pairs of two. One watches while the other shoots. Except when the rifle is actually fired it is always unlocked with the bolt open and the barrel pointed down the range.

University WAA Scheduled To Play Louisville Quintet

The woman's basketball team at the University of Louisville asked for it when they grinned for a Courier-Journal photographer and the CJ labeled them "Champions."

Letters flew from Lexington to Louisville and now the University WAA will travel today to meet the U of L quintet in a real battle of champions. Undeclared this year, Kentucky's basketballers have needed some real competition and it seems the Louisville team is tops.

Thus far the Kentucky Kittens have defeated Centre, Midway, and Transylvania. Training for tonight's encounter at 6:30 in the U of L gym, they have been practicing every night this week in addition to the regular afternoon session from 4 to 5.

WAA members who will make the Louisville trip are Carolyn Hill, Jean Crabb, Lib Faulkner, Jeanne Bureau, Betty Lee Fleishman, Anne Mitchell, Zelma Goldenberg, Martha McCauley, Lucille Clark, Mary Jane Dorsey, Jane Erickson, Marge Palmore, Marge Smith, Jane Oldham, and Pat Shely. 9:28-o:GIMWfc7h-m

Capurso Attends Annual Meeting

Dr. Alexander Capurso, executive director of the Music department, represented the University at the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music held recently at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dr. Capurso is a member of the committee on Intercultural Relations and College Music of the educators convention. He is also a member of the Music Teachers National association, the American Psychological association and other professional organizations.

Others from the faculty who attended the meeting were Lewis H. Horton and John S. Richardson.

Shively's Line Includes 200 Pound Class Of Men

Line coach Bernie Shively who, with Ab Kirwan, is "lookin' 'em over."

Scheduling football practice every afternoon from 3:30 to 5 p. m. Coach Ab Kirwan and Line Coach Bernie Shively are attempting to find grid talent early in the season. Shively's line possibilities include three or four boys in the over 200-pound class and other players are expected in June and in September.

An average of 12 men has appeared on Stoll field each afternoon and the invitation to interested men is still extended to try out any afternoon. Even boys who have had no previous football experience are asked to try.

Most faithful of the early-season tryouts have been Jesse McCune, Louisville boy who played varsity football for Indiana; Hugh Shannon, 225-pound West Virginian; Dave Depage, Harry Hughes, Frank Browning, Bill Bach, Alfred Nuckels, Ed Allin, Jack Tingle, George Vulich, Wilbur Schu, James Parker, and a few local high-schoolers.

Calling all SUNDAY DRIVERS!

You won't ever see a roadside sign that says holidays ahead. . . But the fact remains that the great Outdoor Season is already under way and here for a long stay.

And that means new play clothes for all the family—new hats and handbags—new swim suits and tennis rackets and sun-tan oil—new gadgets for the car—new everything for a new life-under-the-sun.

"But what will we use for money?" . . . Well, here's a good tip on that point. Use the same old money—but S-T-R-E-T-C-H it! Watch the advertisements in this paper for chances to buy more for less! You'll find good values offered every time, things you especially want at prices that are reasonable and fair.

It's a good habit—shopping by newspaper before you shop at the store. Saves you real money! Brings you more things you need and want. Helps you live life a little more richly!
